VCE's Electric Advisor service can help you upgrade your home

Did you know California has set aside millions of dollars to help households replace old appliances, heating systems, and thermostats with energy-saving models? Our free Electric Advisor service can help you access these funds! We'll also help you choose the right electric appliances for your home and budget.

Help me save money

Enroll in the Hourly Flex Pricing pilot program and save

Introducing a NEW three-year pilot program to help residential, business, and agricultural customers lower their utility bills! When you enroll in the Hourly Flex Pricing pilot, PG&E will let you know the next day's hourly electrical rates in advance. You'll be able to set your EV charger and smart devices to run when rates are lower.

Seasonal Festivities

The VCE team had a Winters-y good time displaying our partner Monarch's MK-V electric, semi-autonomous tractor at the Annual Tractor Parade in Winters on December 7! Seeing all of you, dressed up in your costumes and seasonal outfits, really lit us up. We're so grateful to be a member of a community that comes together for celebrations like this.

Your EV could soon power Yolo County

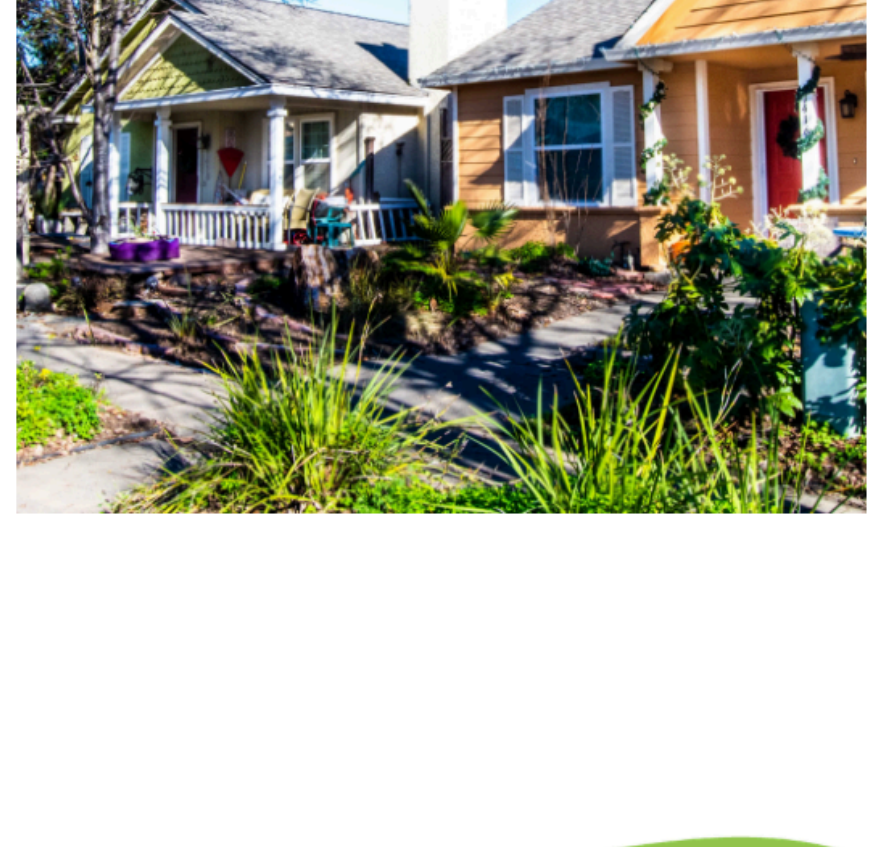

More and more electric vehicles have bidirectional charging. That means you can run appliances or tools off your EV's battery, or even sell power back to the electric grid. VCE's innovative new Rural Electrification and Charging Technology (REACT) program gives farmers incentives to switch to an EV tractor and install a bidirectional charger. Unlock new ways to power your equipment—and save money. Join the future of farming today!

Save money this winter (without doing anything)

During the winter holidays, many of us use more electricity. That's because the weather is colder, kids are home from school, and the festive decorations may be up. Good news for VCE customers: Our rates are already lower than PG&E's — and starting January 1, 2025, low-income households will have a 10% discount, and all other customers will have a 5% discount! We're committed to helping you keep your electricity costs down.

California's e-bike rebate program is now taking applications

The California Air Resources Board just announced that it will start taking applications for its new e-bike rebate program on December 18. There are some income-based eligibility requirements, but if your application is approved, you could get up to $2,000 to purchase an e-bike, helmet, and lock at a participating store. The program will review applications on a first-come, first-served basis, so apply as soon as you can!
